

The Supreme Court's Atheistic Interpretation of the Constitution and Its Consequence for the Destruction of America

By Charles Thomas Dennis, Ph.D.

December 1, 2015

—Introduction—

After visiting America in 1831 Alexis de Tocqueville observed, “The Americans combine the notions of Christianity and of liberty so intimately in their minds that it is impossible to make them conceive the one without the other.”* Today, to the detriment of society, the government rejects any notion of the necessary relationship between Christianity and liberty. To the contrary it works overtime to suppress any Christian influence on social mores whatsoever, which are so essential for the maintenance of liberty.

A nation whose motto is “In God We Trust,” which historically is Christian in conception and application, has been infiltrated by government officials who by their actions and policies shake their fists in the face of God and rebuke His moral prerogative. This is the pathway that leads not to liberty, but to societal perdition.

In this article, the confirmation of this truth is presented in six parts. The facts revealed throughout are devastating to the purveyors of ideological nonsense, moral contrariety, and social destruction. The impact of the exuberance of truth is only as great as the breadth of its reach.

Please help the impact by sharing this truth with others.

Part I | Part II | Part III | Part IV | Part V | Part VI

Home | Articles

*Alexis de Tocqueville, Democracy in America, Henry Reeve, trans. 3rd Amer. ed. (New York: George Adlard, 1839), 1.305.